This paper describes the implementation of a framework for implementing compilers. This framework is divided in two parts. In the first part, the framework automatically builds lexer, parser and classes of abstract syntax tree nodes. In the second part, the framework uses Aspect-Oriented Programming to implement semantics analysis and code generation.